

At the BLUE PERUKE in Red-Lion-street, White-Chappel, liveth THO. BARKER, Peruke-maker, who maketh all Sorts of new Work, well and fashionable, at very low Prices.

AND He having obtained the greatest Art that ever yet was found out for sweating of Wigs, tho' never so much out of Curl, by which means he causes them to hold a lasting Curl, as well as when first made: He also brings the Hair, if never so high coloured, to a fine pale Colour, which no one can do except himself. He having done many, to the Satisfaction of all the Gentlemen that have try'd his great Performances, they advised him to publish this Advertisement for the good of all Gentlemen. His Days of sweating are Tuesdays and Fridays, and he sends them home the next Day. His Prices are Two Shillings and Six Pence for each Bob, and Three Shillings and Six Pence for a Tye, and Three Shillings a Pig-Tail. Any Gentlemen that are at a Distance from him, if they please to write a Penny-Post Letter, he will send for their Wig or Wigs.

If any other propose this, they are Pretenders.
